As in previous modules, the pupil must read the words in the list. Tick those that the pupil reads correctly and put a dot in the box if the word is incorrectly read. The words must be correctly read at least 3 times. By this time the column should only have ticks in it. The new sound is printed in RED. Sounds learnt previously are in green. Remind the pupil about these sounds. If necessary go back and find the sound and revise it.

At this point my six had worked for a good thirty minutes. Remember that you are not teaching the sound model with these pages; You check to see your child understands it. I certainly had enough evidence that he could read and write words with the AI or Ay model. For this page, my six have identified the correct spelling of the name of each image. You don't need nine worksheets to do it! However, I will let you know that this page of cutting and type is never optional for my Kiddo because it is so important that children can hear the different sounds in words.
